Nome Virginian Traits. Carsory Sketch, by T. Orra Langborne. Whilst engaged in coal and salt mining, my father spent years in traveling through the wilds of Virginia and Kentucky, much of the country he traversed being still primeval forest, inhabited by a lawless and uncouth people, destitute of civilized arts, and often living like savages. Unbounded hospitality and a rude code of honor, which includes protection of the stranger within their gates are characteristic of these people. Papa always came home once or twice a year, are characteristic of these people. Faja always came home once or twice a year, sometimes staying months at a time; gain, he would come like a bird on the wing, and leave as unexpectedly as he came. He always entertained the home circle "greatly after these expeditions, with descriptions of the people among whom he had been sojourning. He usually managed to establish his head-quarters with some rich coal or cattle man, whose mansion was the solitary abode of culture and refinement, shedding light over a vast region of ignorance and degradation, going thence on short trips of a few weeks or days and returning for rest and refreshment to the family, who were sure to extend a hearty welcome to any stranger of your month of the family, who were sure to extend a hearty welcome to any stranger of tend a hearty welcome to any stranger of good manners and agreeable conversa-Most counties in southwestern irginia afford one or two such families. The head man usually goes to Congress, or at least to the Legislature. He is an oracle with his neighbors, and returns rom his annual attendance at the coun cils of the nation well pleased to find himself the center of attraction to the rustics around him. His new broaden of his native hills, while the men

Fully appre-ciating his importance, the great man ac-quires a suitable dignity of deportment, is tire to refer frequently in conversa-tion to his distinguished acquaintances; mingles Latin words and parliamentary phrases indiscriminately with the oaths and cattle talk of his provincial dialect, and is truly patriarchal in the benevo-lence with which be regards his neigh-bors and constituents, few of whom can read. ok up to him with admiration not unread.

The place papa most enjoyed in his ramblings in the wilderness was the residence of the Floyds in Taxwell county, where the mother of Gen. John B. Floyd presided in queenly style over a large establishment consisting of her numerous descendants, slaves and retainers, all of whom regarded her with devotion. The family boasted of Indian ancestors, and were people of indomitable will, fine talents and much culture. In faith they were all Catholics. My father greatly admired old Mrs. Floyd, and often repeated at home her conversations, which were replete with the wisdom gathered from long experience of books and men, were replace with the wisson gathered from long experience of books and men, coupled with shrewd observation. "A woman's love," she would say, "is as im-mortal as her soul." The family were all wont to express themselves in vigorous language. Without taking part, ouppoons once listened to a conversaion between John B. Floyd and its brother George, a talented, brother George, a talented, iric, luckless ne'er-do-well. George entric, inckiess ne er-do-well. Grorge oyd had spent thousands, as he uid bave spent millions had it been in power, on all sorts of wild schemes, d was then intent upon an impractica-plan for rafting lumber down the Big e plan for rating jumber down the Big andy river. John Floyd vainly repre-nted to his enthusiastic brother the im-sability of carrying out such an at-ppt. George refused to listen to argu-ent, and accused his brother of always worther him at every type, adding worther him at every type, adding possibility of carrying out such an at-tempt. George refused to listen to argu-ment, and accused his brother of always thwarting him at every turn, adding doggedly that he "could not see why this scheme should not succeed to perfection." Weary of trying to convince such an un-reasoning man, John Floyd exclaimed, indiganally, "It will not succeed, George, because it would take all the gold of Cal-idania, with hell to make it to carry it

TO ALL, PARTICHARLY INVALIDS, spring is a trying season. Indications of sickness should at once be attended to. Fatal diseases may be caused by allowing the bowels to become constipated and the system to remain in a disordered condition, until the disorder has time to develop itself. An onnee of prevention is worth a pound of cure, is an old and trathful saying. Therefore we advise all who are troubled with the complaints now very prevalent—headache, indigestion, disordered liver, want of appetite, massen, now very prevalent—headache, indigestion, disordered liver, want of appetite, mause, for feverish skin, to take, without delay, Schenck's Mandrake Pills. We know of mercacety so harmless and decisive in its action. It at once strikes at the root of the disease and produces a healthy tone to the system. People never need suffer from any disease arising from a disordered condition of the liver if they would take this excellent modicine when they feel the first indications of the malay. Emillies leaving home for the summer months should take three or four boxes of these pills with them. They have an almost instantaneous They have an almost instantaneous They will relieve the patient of the in one or two hours, and will y cleanse the liver of surrounding bile, and will effectuarry prevent a one attack. They are sold by all druggists.
